CORE 1415 Intermediate Reading and Writing for Non-Chinese Language Background Students

1. Course Information

CORE 1415 is a three-credit, one semester core course designed for students with a non-Chinese language background who have learned Chinese for less than 100 tuition hours. Students attend up to three hours of class and complete up to six-hours of out-of-class work, per week.

This course aims to enhance students' ability to recognize and write Chinese characters, and to help develop their understanding of written Chinese and writing competence in using Chinese in daily life and social situations. After successfully completing the course, students will be able to recognize and write commonly used Chinese characters, understand narrative, expository and basic argumentative texts, and write short passages for daily life and social purposes. The course is taught in Putonghua supplemented with English.

Note: Students who would like to enroll in a Chinese course should refer to the Guidelines for Chinese Course Selection and follow the procedure.
